2026/2027 Impact Update

20th ANNIVERSARY STARS APPEAL 2007-2027 Salisbury Hospital's Charity

Welcome

I am delighted to welcome you to the 2026/27 Stars Appeal Impact Update.

Every day at Salisbury Hospital, your donations are making a significant and lasting difference. Patients, their loved ones and the NHS staff who care for them are all benefitting. And it is all thanks to your generosity.

Inside, you can meet just a handful of the local people your support is helping. We thank them for so courageously sharing their stories. Their experiences resonate with us all. I am sure many of you reading this, like me and my family, have benefitted from the exceptional care provided by Salisbury Hospital and the enhancements made possible by the Stars Appeal.

Once again, we have received wonderful support from across our community. A record-breaking Walk for Wards, a bustling Rockbourne Fair and the ever-popular Berwick St John Country Fayre were among the many highlights. The continued generosity of our donors and those who remember us in their Wills has enabled us not only to continue our ongoing work, but also to fund major new hospital equipment, including equipment for the new Urgent Treatment Centre.

2027 marks the 20th anniversary of the launch of the Stars Appeal at Wilton House. Together, we have achieved so much over that time and, in doing so, improved healthcare for tens of thousands of local people. To celebrate, we are planning a special event and would love to welcome as many of you as possible who have supported us over the years. To register your interest, please email 20years@starsappeal.org and we will make sure you receive further details.

Please keep up your wonderful support as we seek to do even more for patients, families and staff at our hospital in this milestone year.

Thank you once again, and I wish you a very happy Christmas and New Year.

▲ Charlie and Arlo

I spent five months in hospital. You made a difference

My name is Charlie Cruse. I'm 19 years old and a full-time wheelchair user with complex disabilities and I live with Ehlers-Danlos syndrome, a connective tissue disorder that affects my joints, digestive system and internal organs.

In June 2026, I was admitted to Salisbury Hospital due to rare autoimmune conditions that impact my airways and spent over five months on Laverstock Respiratory Ward.

During this time, projects funded by donations from Stars Appeal supporters made a huge difference to me.

I loved using Rod's Place, the Stars Appeal garden. It gave me somewhere beautiful and peaceful to get away from the hustle and bustle of the ward, where I felt less like a patient and more like myself again. I felt free.

> "Your support has given my family and I moments together that I'll always treasure."

This picture was taken when I was well enough to leave the ward for the first time. I went to Rod's Place with my assistance dog, Arlo, my mum and my grandparents. It was one of the most amazing and wholesome experiences we've had as a family since I've been in hospital. I could sit quietly and groom Arlo, do task work and play with him, allowing him to be off duty.

For a little while, we could just be ourselves. We spent precious time together and made wonderful memories that wouldn't have been possible without the Stars Appeal.

The Stars Appeal has supported me in so many other ways too, from bedside arts and crafts and visits from the chaplains to the Stars Appeal Wi-Fi, which gave me a welcome distraction and helped me stay connected with friends and family.

The chaplains, who are funded by the Stars Appeal, have been there whenever I've needed them. I remember sitting in the chapel crying one day when one of them came over and stayed with me, talking everything through until I left smiling. They've been there for me through some of the most challenging times, but they've also been there to share the happiest moments, like celebrating my exam results.

The chaplains always make time for you, whether it's for a deep conversation or just a laugh. They've supported my family too, and the love, kindness and empathy the team shows is incredible. I wouldn't have got through this time in hospital without them. It's so nice to have a friendly face to talk to who isn't part of the clinical team. They are a lifeline.

The charity's sleeper chairs also meant my mum could stay by my side, which helped me feel calmer and reassured, and allowed her to continue to support my care.

To everyone who donates to the Stars Appeal, thank you. Your support has made such a difference during a challenging time in hospital and given my family and I moments together that I'll always treasure.

Transforming eye care at Salisbury Hospital

Thanks to your donations, fundraising and gifts in Wills, patients at Salisbury Hospital's Eye Clinic are benefitting from the latest specialist equipment.

Most recently, we've funded a £7,000 autorefractor and nine new slit lamps, totalling £50,000.

The autorefractor quickly and painlessly measures how a patient's eyes focus, helping the Eye Clinic team determine what strength of glasses they may need or whether further checks are needed. It also provides useful information for planning cataract surgery and assessing patients' sight afterwards. Over 200 patients are benefitting from this machine every month.

Slit lamps are used to examine most patients who come through the Eye Clinic, giving doctors a highly detailed view of the eye to help diagnose and monitor a wide range of eye conditions.

Pauline Roddison is just one of the patients to have benefitted from the new autorefractor after having laser treatment. She said: "It is wonderful and so reassuring to know that I'm being treated with the latest equipment to monitor my eyesight. It was so quick and easy. Thank you so much to the supporters of the Stars Appeal who paid for this machine. The Stars Appeal does such a fabulous job helping people like me at the Eye Clinic and across the hospital."

▲ Eye Clinic Consultant Mrs Karinya Lewis with the YAG laser

Other specialist equipment previously funded by your donations includes a 3D OCT (optical coherence tomography) machine, which provides detailed scans of the retina and optic nerve to help detect and monitor conditions such as macular degeneration, as well as specialist YAG and Cyclo lasers used in the treatment of glaucoma.

An estimated 40,000 patients attend the Eye Clinic each year. Your support also helps make patients' visits more comfortable through Stars Appeal projects including enhancements to the Eye Clinic environment, free Wi-Fi and water coolers.

Eye Clinic Consultant Mrs Karinya Lewis said: "We know just how precious sight is and what a difference good vision makes to everyday life. Having the specialist equipment to thoroughly examine and assess our patients helps us protect, preserve and restore sight and provide the care that's right for them. Thanks to the generosity of Stars Appeal supporters, we're able to do just that. We're incredibly grateful to everyone who makes this possible. Thank you."

▲ The Eye Clinic Team

You can help more patients receive cataract surgery

Every year, hundreds of local people undergo cataract surgery at the hospital, which can help restore their sight and maintain their independence.

Now, to help meet growing demand, we're raising £140,000 to fund a state-of-the-art ophthalmic microscope to equip a second operating theatre.

The new microscope will help the hospital increase its capacity for cataract operations, enabling more patients to receive treatment sooner. More than 1,250 local people are expected to benefit each year.

The microscope's advanced technology also opens up the potential for retinal surgery to be carried out at Salisbury Hospital in the future. And if we raise more than the £140,000 needed, your generosity will help us do even more for local patients in the Eye Clinic.

If you would like to help fund the new microscope, please visit the Stars Appeal website, call us on 01722 429005, or complete the donation form on the back page. When making your donation, let us know that you wish to support this project. Thank you for your support.

Your donations created a place where I felt safe and cared for

▲ Jo at the Stars Appeal Breast Unit

My name is Jo Argyle. I'm head of maths at South Wilts Grammar School in Salisbury and a mum of twin sons.

In 2016, when I was 41, I found a lump and was referred to Salisbury Hospital. I took my mum with me, convinced it was nothing serious.

After a mammogram and scans, the consultant called us into a room and said, "We're treating this as breast cancer." I just cried. I said, 'I don't want this.' I didn't want to walk away from my job or become someone defined by cancer.

At that stage, I had a significant amount of cancer in my breast (five tumours). Telling my children, who were only 10 at the time, was incredibly difficult. It was a huge shock for all of us. I had to have my breast removed, followed by six rounds of chemotherapy.

What I remember most was having to move between different departments for scans and appointments. It was stressful navigating the hospital and carrying all my belongings from place to place.

Nine years later, I found another lump under my arm, on the side where my breast had been removed.

> "Your generosity has created far more than a building. You've created a place of comfort, reassurance and compassion."

I thought it must be scar tissue, but why hadn't I felt it before?

The hospital saw me very quickly. This time, however, I was seen in the Stars Appeal Breast Unit, which didn't exist when I was first diagnosed. I had scans and biopsies in the same place before seeing my consultant.

I started to cry because I knew what it was before I was told. The cancer was back. The thought of going through it all again was devastating. I underwent surgery, followed by five days of radiotherapy.

My experience the second time was very different thanks to the Stars Appeal Breast Unit. The Breast Care Nurses run the unit like it's their home, so it doesn't feel like a hospital. It was warm and welcoming and felt like a safe bubble for me.

Having appointments in one place removed so much stress. The prosthesis fitting room is beautiful and made me feel valued and respected. Even small touches, like the comfy chairs and the shopping-style bags provided for your clothing, make you feel cared for. The Breast Unit is truly special.

Thank you to all the Stars Appeal donors. Your generosity has created far more than a building. You've created a place of comfort, reassurance and compassion for people facing one of the most difficult times of their lives.

Your support is helping to provide the best care for patients like Jo in our dedicated Breast Unit - thank you.

▲ The Breast Unit Nurses

You can help us buy a new mammogram machine

Please help us raise £300,000 to provide a new state-of-the-art mammogram machine for the Breast Unit at Salisbury Hospital.

The new machine will offer the latest 3D imaging technology, helping clinicians detect breast cancer and provide reassurance when cancer is not present. As well as providing clearer, more detailed images, the equipment is designed to make mammograms more comfortable, helping to ease what can often be an anxious experience.

Breast Care Nurse Nickie Westlake said: "Mammography plays such an important role in breast care, helping to investigate breast problems and detect cancer early. I know how anxious patients can feel while waiting for investigations and results.

"A new mammogram machine will give us the latest technology to produce high-quality images, detect or rule out cancer and perform faster scans with lower doses of radiation, making the experience more comfortable for our patients at what can be a worrying time."

Around 4,200 local people will benefit from the new machine every year. This includes those attending the Breast Unit for diagnosis, as well as those receiving ongoing care and monitoring following breast cancer treatment.

If you would like to help us provide this new mammogram machine, please visit the Stars Appeal website, call us on 01722 429005, or complete the donation form on the back page.

When making your donation, let us know that you wish to support this project specifically. Donors giving £1,000 or more will be recognised on a plaque in the Breast Unit.

And if we raise more than the £300,000 needed, your generosity will help us do even more for patients across the hospital. Thank you for your support.

Every day, babies and children at Salisbury Hospital benefit from your support

Ryder

Ryder was born two months early and spent four weeks on the Neonatal Unit.

His parents, Chantelle Perry and Richard Hall, who live in Collingbourne Ducis, a 45-minute drive away, were able to stay with him in the Stars Appeal parents' accommodation.

Chantelle said: "It was a very scary time. Thanks to Stars Appeal donors, we could stay on the ward and be with our son 24/7. Without that, it would have been so much harder to process everything that was going on.

"Every mum wants to be with her baby, especially when they're poorly. We couldn't have got through it all without the Neonatal Unit and the Stars Appeal, who supported us every step of the way."

Remy

After being rushed to hospital with a severe nosebleed, two-year-old Remy Liu spent three days on Sarum Children's Ward, where he was diagnosed with a rare blood disorder.

His mum Emma, from Salisbury, said: "The Stars Appeal playrooms and sensory room were invaluable, giving him a calm space during his stay. The Stars Appeal Play Assistant brought toys to his bedside and, when he was feeling better, he loved spending time in the playroom.

"Even now, when we go to hospital appointments, he says he's going to play. The toys and child-friendly facilities make him forget that he's about to be poked with needles and make hospital feel more like a play day, with important medical care in between."

▲ Eva enjoys using the Omibeam machine during her physiotherapy session

Interactive therapy equipment is helping turn physiotherapy into playtime for children at Salisbury Hospital.

For example, this £8,000 Omibeam machine transforms treatment rooms into colourful virtual playgrounds, with games such as painting and hopscotch, alongside space-inspired adventures that transport young patients to exciting worlds.

It supports children of all abilities, including those with limited mobility, cerebral palsy or autism, as well as children recovering from injuries and operations. Young wheelchair users can also enjoy the interactive equipment.

Physiotherapist Anne Whiting said: "The Omibeam makes physiotherapy so much more fun and engaging for our patients. Children are more relaxed and keen to get moving when exercise feels like a game, so they get more out of their sessions."

Eva Gibson, aged 10, has been using the interactive therapy machine as part of her physiotherapy to build strength in her ankles and legs to help with her flat feet. She said: "It's really good and makes exercise fun. My favourite game is jumping on the ice cream cones. I get excited about coming to hospital for my appointments because I know I'll get to use the machine. Thank you to everyone who donated to the Stars Appeal."

Stars Appeal-funded projects are making a difference to children in hospital in many other ways too.

On the Children's Ward, your donations have provided high-flow oxygen machines, costing £14,000, to support young patients who need help with their breathing. The equipment means that some seriously ill children can now be cared for in Salisbury, rather than having to be transferred to the Paediatric Intensive Care Unit in Southampton.

Your generosity also funds a dedicated Stars Appeal Play Assistant, as well as additional facilities and equipment, including play areas, sensory equipment and parents' accommodation, helping to make children's time in hospital more comfortable.

The latest equipment for premature babies

Thanks to your generous donations, we've funded three additional phototherapy lights for the Neonatal Unit, helping more babies with jaundice receive vital treatment.

Jaundice is a condition that causes yellowing of a newborn baby's skin and eyes. The phototherapy equipment uses a special blue light to help the body remove the substance that causes the yellowing.

Neonatal Unit Matron Sam Heaton said: "We are incredibly grateful to the Stars Appeal and its generous donors for funding this new equipment.

"This wonderful support has increased our capacity to treat babies with jaundice and is already making a meaningful difference to babies and their families, both on the Neonatal Unit and across Maternity.

"The new lights give us greater flexibility in how we provide phototherapy. For some babies, where appropriate, treatment can continue outside an incubator or cot and during precious skin-to-skin cuddles with their parents, without interrupting their care.

"A heartfelt thank you to every donor whose generosity made these lights possible. Your support means so much to our team and, most importantly, to the babies and families we care for."

The phototherapy lights, costing £15,000, are already making a difference to babies like Harry, who was born early at 36 weeks.

His mum, Becky Clare, from Fordingbridge, said: "It was really hard seeing Harry needing treatment, but knowing he had access to the latest equipment gave me so much reassurance.

"Thank you to everyone who donated to help provide these lights. It means so much knowing that support is there for babies like Harry."

▲ Harry receiving phototherapy treatment

Support like yours helps us equip our Neonatal Unit with the latest incubators and technology. It also helps us fund parents' accommodation and makes us one of the few Neonatal Units in the UK able to offer every mum with a baby on the Unit a room of their own.

▲ Stephanie while in hospital

Your donations helped me through my cancer treatment

My name is Stephanie Borland and I'm a teacher from Salisbury. In September 2025, I had celebrated my 27th birthday, got engaged, and was excitedly planning the next chapter of my life.

Two months earlier, I'd been suffering from back pain. I later noticed a hard lump on my rib, which seemed to be where the pain was coming from. I went to Salisbury Hospital and had scans taken and other tests done. Using the scanners funded by the Stars Appeal, the doctors diagnosed me with Hodgkin lymphoma.

For a long time, I couldn't even bring myself to say the word 'cancer'. It's not something you expect to happen at 27.

At my first chemotherapy treatment, I was sitting next to my fiancé, both of us in tears. Just minutes into the treatment, I suffered a seizure and my heart stopped due to a rare allergic reaction. I spent the next two months on the Pembroke Cancer Ward.

It was an incredibly frightening experience, and the anxiety I felt throughout the rest of my chemotherapy treatment was overwhelming. The Stars Appeal Aromatherapist supported me through it with calming foot massages, helping me feel more relaxed and at ease. When you're facing something so scary, those moments of kindness and compassion are a real blessing.

"Your support gave me comfort through one of the worst times of my life."

I spent Christmas and New Year in hospital having chemotherapy. It was the last place I ever imagined I'd be at that time of year. The gift I received from the Stars Appeal on Christmas Day was such a lovely surprise. My fiancé and I used the Stars Appeal's Wi-Fi to video call our families and wish them a Merry Christmas. Thanks to the Stars Appeal, we were still able to make special memories together.

What helped me most during my time in hospital were the things the Stars Appeal provided that took away the everyday worries. The free drinks and snacks available during treatment, as well as the free headscarf I received when I started losing my hair, made a huge difference.

There were times when I felt like giving up, but being able to use the Stars Appeal Wi-Fi to speak to my mum or stay on the phone with my fiancé until I fell asleep helped me through the toughest days.

Now, I'm officially cancer-free. The Pembroke Unit saved my life, and I wouldn't be here today without the incredible care of the staff. I'm so grateful to Stars Appeal donors. Your support not only helped doctors diagnose my cancer, but also gave me comfort and support through one of the worst times of my life. Thank you.

Your ongoing support helps to fund the latest equipment on the Pembroke Unit and a range of support for thousands of people with cancer like Stephanie – thank you.

▲ Stephanie with her husband Alfie on their wedding day in August 2026

Your support is making great things happen

Here are just some of the pieces of equipment you have helped to fund.

Surgery equipment for urological cancer

Your support has funded a £70,000 keyhole surgery 'stack', a portable system used for minimally invasive operations to treat a wide range of urological conditions, including bladder and prostate cancer.

Its high-quality images help surgeons carry out more complex procedures here at Salisbury Hospital, benefitting more than 40 patients every month.

Specialist X-ray machine

Patients at Salisbury Hospital are benefitting from the best possible equipment, including a new £73,000 C-Arm X-ray machine, thanks to supporters like you.

Used during surgery, the machine can take X-rays from different positions without the patient needing to be moved, making it easier for clinical teams to provide treatment during an operation.

The C-Arm provides detailed images to help clinical teams carry out a wide range of operations, including cancer, orthopaedic, trauma, urological and general surgery.

You can help us transform care for even more patients at Salisbury Hospital by giving a monthly gift, fundraising for us, or remembering us in your Will. Please complete the donation form on the back page, call us on 01722 429005 or visit www.starsappeal.org – thank you.

Greater comfort and independence for patients

Two specialist 'tilt-in-space' therapy chairs are providing greater comfort and support for patients who, because of Parkinson's disease, a stroke or other conditions, find it difficult to sit upright on their own.

The chairs, costing £6,000, make it easier for patients to take part in physiotherapy and other rehabilitation activities. They can be tilted forwards or backwards to help relieve pressure, allowing patients to spend more time comfortably out of bed.

These new chairs also allow families to take their loved ones off the ward, perhaps for a visit to the hospital café. This simple change of scenery can lift their spirits and make their day that little bit brighter.

New Urgent Treatment Centre opening soon

Salisbury Hospital's soon-to-open new Urgent Treatment Centre (UTC) will be even better equipped thanks to the generosity of Stars Appeal supporters.

The UTC, which will sit alongside the recently opened Same Day Emergency Care Unit, will provide care for patients with urgent but non-life-threatening conditions, including minor injuries, broken bones, sprains, cuts and infections.

The centre will help patients receive the right care more quickly, while allowing the hospital's Emergency Department to focus on those with the most serious and life-threatening conditions.

While NHS funding is providing the newly converted building, donors have funded nearly £400,000 of additional facilities and equipment to make care even better. This will include dedicated X-ray facilities and six cardiac monitors, both of which will help speed up diagnosis and mean patients won't have to travel to other departments for this care. There will also be a welcoming children's waiting area and a spacious, comfortable staff room.

Together, these enhancements will help create a better experience for around 70 patients every day and provide staff with the equipment and facilities they need to deliver the very best care.

UTC Matron Liam Gondelle said: "We are hugely excited about the opening of the new UTC and the positive impact it will have on our patients' care. The enhancements funded by the Stars Appeal are the icing on the cake, and I extend my thanks to everyone who supports the charity."
